

Protection from development

Plan changes delayed

By Lynne Locke

Upland City Council delayed several general plan amendments Monday night in order to be sure adjacent residents are adequately protected from possible development.

The action came after considerable testimony demonstrating residents are afraid their homes will be devalued and quality of life affected by incompatible development near their homes.

The public hearings on 11 proposed general plan amendments also revealed confusion — especially among residents — about the difference between general plan amendments and zone changes.

Controversial items included a proposed industrial designation for 12.5 acres adjacent to single-family homes; a proposed 14.8-acre single-family residential area adjacent to apartments and industrial uses.

Council members noted the industrial designation for the 12.5-acre site east of Benson Avenue between 15th and 16th streets would leave adjacent homes to the northeast without a buffer from possible industrial development.

Mayor pro tem John McCarthy noted the industrial designation is only needed for the south half of the property since the north half contains wells and equipment and would not be suitable for development.

An existing tennis club would provide a buffer for the southern half of the property. The parcel had been designated for a proposed city park which is no longer needed since the city's greenbelt park is nearby.

The item was continued to the Sept. 7 council meeting for further study. If the council approves the industrial designation, a zone change would be needed before industrial development could start.

A second industrial proposal was opposed by residents adjacent to the 14.8-acre site at the northwest corner of Campus Avenue and 14th Street.

Residents said light industrial uses would lower property values and not be compatible with adjacent existing and proposed residential areas.

The area is designated for multiple-family residential on the general plan, but actual zoning permits light industry.

Council members referred the item to the Planning Commission for study and recommended consideration of a general plan change to single-family residential for the area.

Such a change would leave the actual zoning as manufacturing, so a zone change would be required before single-family development could begin. Manufacturing uses would be permitted as long as the actual zoning remains light manufacturing.

The proposed change which attracted the most citizen interest would designate the seven-acre parcel at the northeast corner of Benson Avenue and Eighth Street for single-family homes rather than the present multiple-family designation on the general plan.

The property owner and developer disagreed with adjacent residents on proper use of the parcel. Residents, noting they are already heavily affected by apartments, supported the proposed change to single-family residential which would protect the value of their property.

Owner Jack Singer opposed the single-family designation and stated single-family homes would not sell at the location which is a busy corner, with apartments on one side and industrial uses on two sides of the property.

Singer said he is working on a proposal for adult apartments, which would buffer single-family residences with considerable landscaping.

The council delayed consideration of the proposed amendment until the Sept. 20 meeting to allow Singer to gain support from residents for his proposed development. The parcel is presently zoned agricultural and would require a zone change before any development could be started.

The City Council referred a fourth parcel to the Planning Commission with the request it consider a general plan amendment which would lower proposed density for the 25-acre site northwest of Campus Avenue and 14th Street. The parcel is presently designated for heavy industrial uses but is actually zoned for flood plain and could not be developed until the zoning is changed.

The Planning Commission had recommended a single-family residential designation, which would allow homes with minimum lot sizes of 7,500 square feet. Councilman Bill Bottin commented the designation should be changed to require larger lots (10,000 square feet) because the area will be prime land once the adjacent city dump is filled.

Planners to hold zone change public hearings

Upland Planning Commission 7:30 p.m. Aug. 26 will consider zone changes for eight parcels within the city, and two parcels which are expected to be annexed in the future.

Public hearings, which will affect a total of 104 acres include:

— Zone Change 414 from agricultural to single-family residential (minimum lot size of 15,000 square feet) for 10 acres at the southeast corner of San Antonio Avenue and 17th Street.

— Zone change 415 from agricultural to single-family residential (minimum lot size of 15,000 square feet) for 10 acres southwest of 18th Street and Laurel Avenue.

— Zone change 416 from agricultural to single-family residential (minimum lot size of 20,000 square feet) for 10 acres northwest of 20th Street and Euclid Avenue.

— Zone change 417 from highway commercial to multiple-family residential (7,500-square-foot minimum lot size) for four acres northwest of Foothill Boulevard and Mountain Avenue.

— Zone change 418 from agricultural to single-family residential (minimum lot size of 10,000 square feet) for 10 acres northeast of 21st Street and Mountain Avenue.

Students involved in research at UCR

Uplanders Tom Okamoto and Andrew Shaner were among 32 chemistry, biochemistry and biology students who participated in a summer of independent research at the University of California, Riverside.

The undergraduate fellowships, funded by the National Science Foundation, offered 10 weeks of intensive laboratory research with UCR science professors. The students were chosen from nearly 300 applicants nationwide.

Okamoto and Shaner, both 1974 graduates of Upland High School and now second-year UCR students, pursued tasks generally left for the graduate or post-doctoral student.

Okamoto, a student in the UCR Biomedical Program during the academic year, worked in Dr. Tony Norman's biochemistry lab studying Vitamin D "analogs" — substances that may work just as well as Vitamin D in forming calcium but will cost a lot less.

"I saw the opportunity and I took it," Okamoto said. "It's really good for getting exposure to the profession, the techniques of lab procedure, and scientific methods. It's kind of early, but there are a lot of things I'd like to find out."

He said he spent up to 10 hours a day in the lab during summer, another 15 hours a week during the busy academic year.

Research also includes the basic reading of articles and journals to find out the state of the art, which Okamoto has done extensively.

Shaner, also in the Biomedical Program, has been involved in the sometimes tedious process of filtering, separating and re-filtering bacterial material to get at an enzyme called rec BC, extremely important to living cells. The purification process alone can take up to five weeks.

"This has been a tremendous help," he said. "The more you work in a lab, the more often it is that when you encounter something in a book it sticks. Even if you held that chemical in your hand just once, it helps to relate the information."

Shaner worked in Dr. Alexander Karu's lab and plans to continue his research in a bacterial system that could be analogous to systems in animal cells.

UCR's total grant amount — $56,220 — was the largest given any single campus in the nation. Science Foundation grants totaling $2.55 million were awarded to 165 colleges and universities in 44 states, supporting 201 projects. Some 1,500 students were involved nationwide.

Walter Deal, UCR professor of chemistry and supervisor of the projects in his department, said the undergraduate research experience "gets a student into a faculty member's lab, doing research."

"Also," he added, "There's no better way to find out about real-life situation than to be involved in it."

His colleague in biology, Vaughn Shoemaker, said the experience isn't all one-sided and geared toward the student.

"We get a lot in return," he said. "It takes a few weeks, but the students can and do contribute a lot more than just a pair of hands. They offer ideas."

Biochemistry Professor Lee Shannon said he expects many of this summer's participants to coauthor major research papers for journals as a result of their experience at UCR.

Supervisors retreat from pay increase

Under threat of recall, the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors Monday retreated from the 40 per cent pay raise they voted themselves a week ago.

Ontario Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell, who is facing a recall filed against him last week, proposed a plan to delay the $8,566 annual raise until a seven-member citizens' committee has reviewed the salary increase.

The supervisors accepted Mikesell's proposal and agreed to abide by the recommendations of the citizens' committee. They will select the organizations to be represented on the committee Monday.

Mikesell submitted a list of organizations, including local daily newspapers, the League of Women Voters, homeowners' and taxpayers' associations, senior citizen and minority groups, that could be part of the salary review committee.

He said the committee should be composed of "people who have a desire to see equity done" and who would make a "definite recommendation" to the Board of Supervisors.

The salary review committee will report back to the supervisors by Oct. 8, a week after the pay raise was scheduled to take effect, and a public hearing will be held at the time the committee makes its recommendation on the supervisors' pay level.

"This should allay the fears of the public that we did this (voted in a pay raise) because we're on some kind of ego trip," Mikesell stated.

Within hours after the recall movement against him was announced last Friday, Mikesell had proposed a public referendum on the pay raise issue.

But he indicated Monday that he now favors the citizens' review committee, because of the large number of signatures that would have to be obtained for a referendum and the fact that the public is largely unaware of the referendum alternative.

Mikesell on Monday first proposed rescinding the 40 per cent pay raise and that proposal was backed by Supervisor Robert O. Townsend of Chino. Supervisors' Chairman Dennis Hansberger, the swing vote, said he would support the citizens' committee but he would not vote to retract his vote on the pay increase.

"I'm not second-guessing the previous action of the board," Hansberger said.

However, to maintain the "credibility" of the Board of Supervisors, Hansberger said, he is willing to subject the pay issue to public scrutiny through a citizens' committee.

It would be my intention to accept the recommendations of the committee, whatever they may be," Hansberger added.

Supervisor Nancy Smith at first, said she would not support the citizens' salary review committee unless the committee also could be charged with reviewing the salaries of all elected department heads in the county.

Throughout the deliberations on the salary increase, Mrs. Smith has maintained that the supervisors, who are the lowest-paid elected officials in the county, have taken a beating from the county, have taken a beating from the public on the pay issue while the other elected officials' salaries have not been scrutinized at all.

Mrs. Smith, who is retiring from the board of supervisors Dec. 6 and says she will benefit little from the salary increase, was also still clearly in favor of the 40 per cent pay raise.

Mrs. Smith told her colleagues that "I think, perhaps not intentionally, you're denigrating your own position" by not sustaining the action of the previous week and taking the 40 per cent raise.

"It appears that there is not sufficient courage on this board to sustain the previous action," she said. "I hate to see the board not have the confidence to take the salary deserved by position."

Mrs. Smith accused local newspapers of "having their own reasons for inflaming this issue" by headlines on the pay raise proposal.

She said letters to the editor and public testimony before the board of supervisors on the pay raise proposal "did not represent a broad cross-section" of the public. Those who complained about the pay raise, she said, do not understand the responsibilities a supervisor has and the amount of time — sometimes 70 hours a week — that must be put in on the job.

"I'm very sorry that those who do understand that weren't here last week," Mrs. Smith remarked.

Mikesell also blamed the press for the flack the supervisors received over the pay raise from the public.

"Had some of the good things we've done been published, I think our job would have been easier," Mikesell said.

Mrs. Smith's request that the salaries of all elected department heads be reviewed by the citizens' committee was rejected by the supervisors — mainly because the other elected officials' salaries were raised July 1. The committee might be asked, though, to examine the question of future salary increases for other elected officials in the county.

In the end, Mrs. Smith and Supervisor James Mayfield of Apple Valley, also a staunch advocate of the 40 per cent pay raise, voted to support the citizens' review committee.

"I don't think we want anyone to be able to say we're not going to take a second look at this," Mayfield said.

Skateboarders

Eric Berg of Montclair was one of three age-group winners in Montclair Recreation Department skateboard tournament, including slalom and freestyle competition.

Other first-place winners are Jeff Claire of Claremont and Mike Cantu of Ontario.

Local winners include Kirk Salisbury of Montclair, second place; and Toby Pierce of Cucamonga, third.

American food, will be held 6:30 p.m. Saturday at 10165 Marion Ave., Montclair. Proceeds will help 10 Montclair High School students attend youth seminar. Other projects include cosponsoring a local student at Girls' State, providing a book scholarship and other community projects. (Photo by Lynne Locke)

Drought puts freeway ahead of schedule

Devore route to open early

Completion of the Devore Freeway between Ontario and San Bernardino is expected to be accomplished four months ahead of schedule and the roadway open sometime in September, according to a California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) spokesman.

The freeway was originally scheduled for completion in 1977, however, favorable weather conditions and other factors combined to push the opening date ahead, Lance Stalker, district information officer, said.

The 15-mile stretch of freeway will shorten a trip from Ontario to San Bernardino by at least 13 miles and 20 minutes, Stalker said. Stalker indicated the freeway (part of the Interstate 15 system) could eventually be part of an artery that will link Mexico and Canada.

The opening date has not been set by Caltrans, but Stalker feels it will be sometime in the middle or end of September.

Waiting to be completed is a 7.3-mile portion that runs from north of Foothill Boulevard in Etiwanda to north of the Sierra Avenue and Lytle Creek Road intersection in Fontana.

Contributing the most to the shortened work schedule have been drought conditions in the area. Although the drought was harmful to crops, Stalker said it allowed several extra working days that would have been cancelled by rain.

Caltrans estimates 20,000 cars a day will use the freeway, resulting in the saving of seven million gallons of fuel a year. This reduction in fuel use will provide "clear-cut environmental benefits," he said.

So far the total cost of the project has reached $56 million, including the interchange near the Ontario Motor Speedway. The unfinished portion, now being worked on, is expected to cost $23.3 million.

Caltrans will begin work on a southern extension of the freeway from Ontario to the Pomona Freeway in a few months, Stalker said.

PPK to hold registration

Registrations for the 1976 Punt, Pass and Kick competition continue to roll in. West End youngsters aged eight to 13 have until Sept. 10 to register.

Punt, Pass and Kick, celebrating its 16th anniversary this year, is sponsored by the Ford Dealers of American in cooperation with the National Football League.

On the local level, youngsters may register at Arena Ford, 555 W. Foothill in Upland. Participation this year on the national level is expected to top the 1,200,000 mark.

More than 12 million youngsters have competed in PPK since its inception in 1961.

Participants in PPK compete only against others their own age. There is no entry fee and there is no contact during the competition.

No special equipment is needed and participating does not impair a youngster's amateur standing.

Local level competition is scheduled for Sept. 18 at Upland High School. The action will begin at 9 a.m. and is expected to run through noon.

After the local level, youngsters subsequently move on to zone, district, area, divisional and national levels. Twelve national finalists will compete for the National Championships for their age group during halftime of an NFL divisional playoff contest.

Scoring is based on accuracy and range with one point added for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance, and a point subtracted for every foot off a center line.

Each entrant will receive a book with tips from NFL stars in each phase of the contest. Ray Guy of the Oakland Raiders speaks on punting, Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals illustrates passing and Toni Fritsch of the Dallas Cowboys demonstrates place kicking.

Six girls will carry green and white flags for Upland High School in the upcoming school year. The flag twirlers are, bottom row from left,

Time to register for school

Pilgrim School for Neurologically Handicapped Children opens in September for the 11th year. The school is located at St. Paul's Congregational Church, 616 Sycamore Ave.,

Claremont. The school educates children with learning and behavioral problems. Most of the children attending have minimal brain damage which causes hyperactive behavior and visual perceptual problems. Applications are currently being accepted for the fall term. Persons interested need to contact the school at 626-6007.

Incorporation Forum

CIAL answers questions

EDITOR'S NOTE: Because of the increasing public interest in the efforts to incorporate the tricomunity of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda, and the public's need to learn the facts about incorporation, the Cucamonga Times is beginning a new column: Incorporation Forum.

In this column tricomunity residents will be allowed, through their letters, to voice their opinions and ask questions of local community leaders; those who are spearheading the tricomunity incorporation drive; those who support incorporation of Alta Loma alone; and those who oppose any form of incorporation for the area. Letters should be sent to: Incorporation Four, Cucamonga Times, 896 W. Foothill Blvd., Suite E, Upland, 91786.

Citizens for the Incorporation of Alta Loma (CIAL) has prepared a statement answering three main questions about incorporation of Alta Loma. CIAL information sheet.

Why incorporate Alta Loma at all?

With Alta Loma as a city, the citizens of Alta Loma could — Control all zone changes affecting lot sizes, commercial areas and open spaces.

Retired teachers celebrate

The first anniversary of the Pomona Valley East Division of California Retired Teachers Association will hold a luncheon celebration at noon, Wednesday, Sept. 8, in Fellowship Hall of the United First Methodist Church of Upland.

"Love That Lunch" will be served by a professional caterer. Also supplied will be a program and prizes.

There will be a birthday motif for the day and each table will represent a different month of the year.

New members and members past their 90th birthday will be given special recognition.

Dorothy Tichenor is luncheon chairman, and members living in Upland will serve as hosts. Reservations are due by Sept. 1.

The program will include slides, "This Is My Country," shown by Clinton Bryant, Upland photographer.

Future events include: Oct. 20, visitation day at Villa Gardens, Pasadena, a convalescent home for retired teachers. Refreshments and flowers will be provided for the residents by Pomona Valley East.

Oct. 21, area division meeting of the California Retired Teachers Association at Redlands.

The Pomona Valley East Division has completed a year of growth and activities under the direction of: Gretchen Ulf, president; Ruth Stickney, first vice president; Miss Tichenor, second vice president; Helen Andersen, secretary; Fern Reisner, corresponding secretary; Paul Shaddle, financial secretary; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest E. Doucette, newsletter and historian; Ruth K. Crutchfield, protective service; Harold Cook, legislation; Virginia Coffey, membership; Esther Hunt, publicity and pioneer teacher; and Florence Armstrong, the Laura E. Settle Fund.

— Have local control to maintain the rural atmosphere that we want and moved to Alta Loma for. (The county officials do not seem to understand our desire for maintaining a low density, rural community.)

— Have a greater voice in local government.

— Assess builders a fixed sum per house built to be contributed towards schools and/or parks.

— Enforce building codes on new houses that may be stricter than those now in effect in the county.

Why incorporate Alta Loma as a separate city rather than as a part of the tricomunity?

— Alta Loma is a small, semirural residential community with a compatible population; tricomunity is a large sprawling area with a diverse population and many special interest groups.

— Alta Loma would be a small town requiring minimal city government and city facilities; tricomunity would be a big city, larger in area than any of the surrounding cities of Upland, Ontario or Pomona, with its size being closer to that of San Bernardino. A city the size of tricomunity would require extensive city government, services and facilities such as a city hall. A city tax would probably be necessary to support such a city. Because of the high assessed valuation of most of the homes in Alta

Loma, the greatest tax burden would fall on Alta Loma residents.

Proponents of tricomunity feel that the tricomunity has industry needed to support a city.

Actually, industry is of no financial value to a city unless a city tax is levied. Industries pay property taxes on their assessed valuation in the same manner as a homeowner. The majority of this property tax goes to the fire and school districts in which the industry is located. School district boundaries do not change with the incorporation of a city. Therefore, only industry within Alta Loma will help Alta Loma School District. Industry in Cucamonga will continue to support Chaffey High School District, including Alta Loma High School, without regard to any incorporation measures.

Alta Loma does have land zoned for industry east of Haven Avenue below Chaffey College. As a city, Alta Loma could have some control over what types of industry develop.

Commercial areas are of much greater importance to a city budget than industry. Alta Loma already has two large shopping centers. (Two more are already planned and approved.) The feasibility study for incorporation of Alta Loma shows that Alta Loma would be financially sound with the two shopping centers already in existence and no city tax.

What will a city cost? — The Alta Loma feasibility study shows that the smaller city of Alta Loma can maintain present services of fire protection and improved police protection yet gain local control of the destiny of Alta Loma with no tax rate increase or city tax.

— The citizens of the city would be able to decide what city services they want and how much "city" they want to pay for.

The services of the water company, school districts, fire district and library would all be unaffected by any incorporation — either Alta Loma or tricomunity. The police protection of an incorporated city of Alta Loma would be increased from its present level. School overcrowding may be indirectly affected by obtaining local control of zone changes to slow growth and maintain low population density.

For more information on the incorporation of Alta Loma, call Mary Barlow, 987-3385 or Connie Geisler, 987-6836.

A copy of the feasibility study for the incorporation of Alta Loma is on file in the Rancho Cucamonga Branch Library.

A Woman Ought to Know

How to get credit

Dear Anita,
I am a recent graduate of high school and working full time. I want to establish a credit history but I know it's hard to obtain credit when you're young. Any suggestions?
J.B., North Highlands

Dear J.B.,
Being a new worker, you probably don't have an earning or repaying history for credit applications. Here are a few tips that may be helpful.

— First of all, try to find stores that encourage young customers. Talk with the credit interviewers and ask their advice.

— If you are offered an account with a credit limit, accept it. Use it for small purchases until you can determine how well you can make payments.

— Make all of your payments promptly. Look to the future when you may have to use the account as a reference for a major purchase.

Good credit is important to anyone, and it has to be handled carefully. You are wise to think about establishing your good credit history in advance of a time when you may want to be able to depend on it.
Anita Miller

Dear Anita,
I recently read a news report about women picketing a private club here in town because the club does not allow women during the lunch hour. What's the fuss about and who would want to eat lunch there anyhow?

Tax claims for seniors due Aug. 31

Qualified California homeowners have filed 244,000, 1976 Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance claims for reimbursement of their 1975-76 property taxes since filing season began May 16, according to Donald Whitney, director of the program for the Franchise Tax Board.

"All claims must be filed no later than August 31, 1976," Whitney said. The law provides reimbursement from 4 to 96 per cent of the property taxes paid depending upon the individual's income. The average payment this year is expected to be approximately $170.

Claimants must own and occupy their home, be 62 years of age or over as of Jan. 1, 1976, and have a household income of less than $10,000, to be eligible for the program.

Senior citizens who believe they qualify for the program and need information and forms, may receive assistance from any district office of the Franchise Tax Board of by writing to the Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Program, P.O. Box 1588, Sacramento, CA 95807.

Don't over exert

Exercise is good for you and your heart but be sure it is regular, says the American Heart Association. Don't over exert on vacation.

- A charcoal grill can be ignited safely by:
 - Kerosene
 - Gasoline
 - Lighter fluid.
- A patio lighting set can be strung safely across an open patio secured only at each end of the set cable.

☐ True ☐ False

ANSWERS

1. None of these are safe. Use wood shavings, special liquid, or solid fire starter materials intended for this purpose, or an electric fire starter bearing the UL Listing Mark.
2. FALSE. A high wind may break the cable or pull the cable connections loose at the light sockets. To be safe, secure the cable at several intermediate points or lace it to a separate support wire.
Provided as a public safety service by Underwriters Laboratories

P.Z., San Francisco
Dear P.Z.,

You might not want to eat lunch there but the truth of the matter is that lunches have been a traditional way of conducting business and making professional contacts.

Private clubs that many times provide the setting for business and professional lunches and meetings often limit their patronage to only one sex — male.

When private clubs prohibit women from attending such meetings, the women are denied the opportunity to meet other people in their same field of work; such contacts are often important contributors to the success of a business.

Women's groups have become increasingly aware of the discriminatory effect the male-only policy has on women who are career minded. The state court is in the process of hearing a case involving discriminatory practices of private clubs. A court decision would go a long way in resolving this problem.

Anita Miller

Dear Anita,
I was recently divorced, and I need to establish a credit rating for myself. How do I go about it?
M.L.M., Martinez

Dear M.L.M.,
There are two basic approaches to establishing credit open to you as a divorced woman.

One is to use the joint accounts established during your marriage as your "credit history." Recent revisions of credit law have made this an option for you now.

Remember, however, that if you bring your former husband's name into your current credit picture, his credit rating will affect yours; if his credit is bad, your credit rating will suffer.

The second approach, which you may prefer for personal reasons, is to start from scratch and build your credit rating. Open a checking account and a savings account. Open a charge account at a retail store that subscribes to the main credit bureau in your town; make purchases that you can afford, and pay the bills promptly. Take out a small loan and establish a good repayment pattern.

Both federal law and California law now require that women have equal access to credit. Your income and your ability to repay should be the only criteria in granting you credit.
Anita Miller.

Cancer Society survey

Teen girls going up in smoke

Since 1969 a half-million more teen-age girls have become smokers, according to a recent survey by the American Cancer Society.

Four of every 10 teen girls who smoke use at least one pack of cigarettes a day.

The number of female smokers steadily increases while the number of males holds approximately steady, reports the August Seventeen, which adds to the well-known hazards of smoking a little-known fact: women who smoke spend 15 per cent more days sick in bed.

Smokers develop a whole life style built around smoking, from flashy lighters and cigarette boxes to activities that are associated with smoking. The first thing to do if you want to quit is change some of these activities.

For example, drinking coffee and smoking are often inseparable, so skip the coffee for a few days.

Health Tips

How tubal ligation works

EDITOR'S NOTE: Health Tips is a column of the California Medical Education and Research Foundation, prepared and edited by physician members of the California Medical Association. It is reprinted by this newspaper as a public service.

For the woman who is absolutely certain that she does not want to have any more children, a reliable means to assure this is through a surgical procedure called tubal ligation. This operation involves tying and cutting the tubes which carry the egg from the ovary to the womb. Since the fertilization of the egg by the male sperm normally takes place in the tube, the purpose of tubal ligation is to prevent the woman's egg from being exposed to male sperm; thus, there is no opportunity for pregnancy to occur. It should be noted, however, that, there are failures to terminate fertility in a small percentage of cases of tubal ligation. Tubal ligation is often done at the time of delivery or within 24 hours after a woman has had a baby. At that time the uterus is still enlarged and the tubes, attached at the top of the uterus, are high in the abdomen. The surgeon makes a small incision in the abdomen and rather readily reaches the tubes.

He or she cuts out a portion in the middle of the tube and ties off both ends, thus making sure there is no longer a passageway for the egg to reach the womb. If the surgery is performed immediately after childbirth, the procedure usually requires that the patient remain in the hospital only a day or two longer than she ordinarily would. If her baby is delivered by cesarean section, tubal ligation is carried out using the same abdominal incision with no extension of the hospital stay required. If the timing of the operation is not related to the delivery of a baby, the tubes are fairly low in the pelvis, and the surgeon may choose to reach them through an incision at the top of the vagina or through a very small incision in the lower abdomen. He or she then follows the same procedure of tying the tubes and removing a portion. Another way to perform tubal sterilization is by laparoscopic cauterization ("laparoscopy"). A viewing instrument called a laparoscope is inserted into the pelvic area through a small incision just beneath the umbilicus (navel). A small operating instrument is inserted through a small incision on the side of the abdomen. With the use of electric current, the operating instrument, under direct vision, burns the tubes, causing permanent blockage. No matter what technique is used, a tubal ligation is not considered a dangerous procedure and usually does not require a long hospital stay. It should not, however, be undertaken lightly. All surgical procedures carry with them some measure of risk — from bleeding, infection, poor healing or adverse reaction to anesthesia or medication. Fortunately, such problems are not common. Perhaps a more profound reason to think carefully before deciding on a tubal ligation is that its results usually cannot be changed. Once the tubes are cut, the woman will probably never have another child. She must be ready to accept that fact. The finality of the act means that she should think carefully about it in advance and should discuss it thoroughly with her husband and physician. On the other hand, the woman who has decided to undergo the procedure should be reassured that the operation will cause no changes in her general health, her response to sexual intercourse, her menstrual cycle or her menopause. A case can be made both for and against tubal ligation, depending on the individual circumstances. There are many other means of birth control for the woman who is concerned only with spacing her pregnancies. Some women, however, have serious problems with contraceptive pills and intrauterine devices and dislike the other forms of contraception. If the decision is made to deal with the problem surgically, there is the choice of tubal ligation for the woman or vasectomy for the man. Neither surgical procedure interferes with the couple's future sexual activities. Vasectomy (a tube-cutting procedure which interferes with the transmittal of sperm) is an office, rather than a hospital, procedure. The risk of complications is less and the procedure is more economical than tubal ligation. Some men, however, have a deep-seated psychological resistance to a vasectomy, and others may be advised by their doctors not to undergo it for various reasons.

Protect children in cars

Auto accidents are the leading cause of death for children one through four years old. Babies and small children are so fragile that they can be injured severely or killed even in a minor collision, writes the automotive expert Julie Candler in her column, Woman at the Wheel, in the September issue of Woman's Day.

In discussing car seats that protect small children, Candler points out that a lap belt alone, while better than nothing, should not be used for children under four years of age. Their pelvic bone structure is not developed enough to prevent possible internal injuries from the belt in the event of a crash. Children are better protected with a child auto seat or other such device.

Look for a device that has been proved effective in dynamic testing that simulates crashes up to 30 miles an hour, Candler advises. For the newborn child and up to age nine months to one year, she recommends a rear-facing device; for the newborn up to about 40-pound child, there are devices used in a semi-reclining, rear-facing position for infants that convert to upright, forward-facing seats when the child begins to sit up.

If you don't want to invest in a restraint device, you can substitute a child safety harness, Candler writes, but they are not as good as seats. However, a well-designed harness is better than a lap belt alone, according to biomechanical scientist John W. Melvin. He advises using a harness in the center rear seat where there is less chance of the child's being hurled against doors and other internal surfaces in the event of a crash.

The Woman's Day article suggests that if you're considering a large, bulky restraint, ask to try it in the car before buying it. Avoid any seat that requires fastening the car lap belt around the child instead of the seat. And don't choose a device merely because it gives your child the best view out of the car window. Most restraint devices include a harness: straps over the shoulders, a strap around the waist and a connecting crotch strap that keeps the waistband from riding up. Five point harnesses are secured by a buckle that can be unfastened instantly.

Slightly less convenient are many of the chair-type seats with a top strap connected to the high back. In the front seat the devices are not safe unless the top strap is buckled to a lap belt in the seat behind it. If the device is used in a back seat, the strap must be tethered to a special anchor permanently attached by drilling a hole in the car's rear seat shelf.

An on-the-road suggestion from Candler: If your child becomes restless after an hour or so in the seat, stop and let everyone stretch and unleash that harnessed energy.

Contributors to local history

Dedicated women cited

Three members of the Upland Woman's Club have made significant contributions to local history according to Mrs. Clyde Mackall, president of the club.

Mrs. Mackall said these women are Beatrice Riggs, Esther Boulton Black and Ada Cooper.

Mrs. Riggs, president of the club from 1956-58, claims a long record of dedication to history. Presently, she heads the board of directors for the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum. This position she has held for 10 years. She directed the relocation of St. Mark's Episcopal Church from Euclid Avenue in Upland to 18th Street, Upland, to have the building turned into a museum which holds priceless possessions of early settlers of the area.

Today, the Cultural Center is open two days a week and is used for monthly programs. A building fund project is in progress to raise enough money to construct a larger museum. Then the former church building can be used for meetings and guest speakers.

During the past year, Mrs. Riggs spoke to 10 service clubs on behalf of the Cultural Center. This Ontario woman also is a member of the San Bernardino County Museum Commission. Professionally, Mrs. Rigg is a real estate broker.

Mrs. Ralph Barnett of the Upland Woman's Club serves on the Cultural Center committee and arranges for club members to serve one day a week as docents for tours.

Involved in history as a writer and lecturer is Mrs. Black. Since retiring as a third grade teacher at Baldy View School in Upland, she has been club chairman of the California history and landmarks committee.

Her last book, "Rancho Cucamonga and Dona Merced," published by the San Bernardino County Museum Association, is having noteworthy success, according to Mrs. Mackall. The book is being read not only in California, but in many parts of the United States due to the favorable reviews.

"Westways" magazine reported in the July issue "The book captures all the turbulence and violence of the time (1850-1870) and brings the characters to life. In so doing, Black has used local history in a way that makes it an important tributary to the main stream of the Golden State's past."

Mrs. Black, assisted by her husband, Douglas Black, gives frequent slide programs to school classes ranging from elementary through college, to service clubs, women's clubs and historical societies. In the annual report to the club for the year ending March 1 of this year, Mrs. Black reported conducting 40 programs which reached 4,300 persons. She has given 15 additional programs since then including radio and television.

Her first book, published in 1967 was called "Stories of Old Upland" and is still being used in the Upland schools.

Mrs. Black does not charge for programs but often contributions are made toward the restoration fund of Casa de Rancho Cucamonga (Rains Home) in Cucamonga. She has been active in the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society since it was organized shortly after the historic house was purchased as a museum by San Bernardino County in 1971. She is presently secretary of the society. Mrs. Black has been a member of the Upland Business and Professional Women's Club since 1937 and has served as president. Mr. and Mrs. Black live on their still-producing lemon grove north of Claremont. Their home is of field stone built in 1930.

Both Mrs. Riggs and Mrs. Black are active in the Upland Town Affiliation Association and went to Mildura, Australia, to invite that city to become a sister city. Mildura was founded by the Chaffey Brothers after they left Ontario in 1887.

Ada Cooper is the third woman who has made substantial contributions to history of the community, according to Mrs. Mackall. Miss Cooper is president of Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society and is first vice president of the Upland Woman's Club.

Before her retirement, she was cashier at the First National Bank of Upland. She came to California when four years old and lived for many years in Cucamonga, where her parents were citrus growers. She completed her elementary education at Miss Frances Barr's Colony School and after graduation from Chaffey, she was advised to enter the business world due to her aptitude to mathematics.

As a member of the Zonta Club, she has also been active in progressional banking organizations and has been a member of the Cucamonga-Alta Loma Woman's Club. Because of her long-time residence and intimate knowledge of the area.

Three West End women, all members of the Upland Woman's Club, who have given dedicated service to the community are, left to right, Beatrice Riggs, Ada Cooper and Esther Boulton Black. They are looking at an 1865 map of the Rancho Cucamonga property. Mrs. Clyde Mackall, president of the Woman's Club, recently cited the trio for contributions made over the years. Their interests center on the history of the West End and the dedication of preserving that history.

Not easy, but challenging

College in middle years

"When I first thought about going to college, I was scared to death," said Jean Barnes, who at age 48 decided she wanted her bachelor's degree. Now, half way to her goal, she says. "The last three years have been the greatest in my life."

Not all those who return to college in their middle years are so exuberant. Some find academic challenges too much in a life filled with adult responsibilities. Still, a surprising number of persons between the ages of 22-65 are back in school these days, hard at work on a college degree.

What does it take to successfully re-enter the academic world after years of being out of school?

"Motivation," says Polly Rabinowitz, associate director of Pitzer College's New Resources program.

"The returning student often feels a lack of confidence in his or her ability to perform well academically. Sometimes he/she feels guilty about taking resources and time away from the family or there may be pressures from a career. Unless a person is extraordinarily motivated, it is easy to get discouraged."

In the Pitzer program, says Mrs. Rabinowitz, motivation seems to be the common denominator in a group that varies greatly in terms of age, experience, and education.

Take Mrs. Barnes: divorced and the mother of two teen-agers, she takes the bus from her home in Baldwin Park to her classes in Claremont. The trip takes two hours each way.

"When I made the decision to go to school," she said, "I knew that I had to do this for myself. I saw some of my friends clutching onto their children and trying to live through them, and I thought, 'that isn't healthy'."

"I've never regretted my decision," she added. "Going to college have given me a sense of freedom and identity, but it has also given my children room to grow. They know I'm always here if they need me, but they don't feel smothered by me."

The Pitzer program, which was inaugurated in 1974, will enroll nearly 100 post-college age students when school reopens in the fall.

Dr. Jim Jamieson, vice president at Pitzer and one of the founders of the New Resources program, said that the name reflects its basic philosophy.

"The idea is that the college can provide new resources to adults seeking additional life options and in turn, these people bring us new resources in terms of a broad range of intellectual interests and life experiences."

But why a special program for adults?

"Before 1974, we had fewer than 10 post-college age students enrolled at any one time and very few stayed around long enough to complete a degree program," Jamieson said.

"Though they said they were happy with the academic program and found it challenging, they complained that their non-academic needs were overlooked."

"That," said Jamieson, "made us take a look at the total program and we saw that everything from the admissions requirements on, was geared to the traditional student, the 18-22 year old."

The challenge, the vice president said, was to maintain rigorous academic standards and still provide for the needs of the non-traditional students.

"Most important of all, we wanted these students to feel like first class citizens whether they were taking one class or four," Jamieson said.

Though some returning students still complain of "feeling isolated" or "out of place," many report that the special program eases the way, and helps them develop the confidence that they often lack at first.

Elizabeth Watson, former Specialist Fifth Class, U.S. Women's Army Corps., and resident of Pomona, said she became intrigued by the New Resources program because she didn't have to take a battery of tests to "prove I could be a student" and because "I felt I could be accepted for myself, as an adult."

Being able to identify with the "New Resources" group, she said, "gives me a sense of belonging at Pitzer."

"Without this," she said, "I might not have had the confidence to take a freshman level psychology course; I was at first frightened and put off by the youth of most of the Pitzer students. But I just don't feel that anymore."

Though many students enrolled in the New Resources program hope their degree will create new options for them professionally, others will tell you that they became interested in Pitzer just because they wanted to learn.

Looking over worn-out playground equipment in the play yard at the Crippled Children's Society, Pomona Valley Center, in Claremont, are: Pat Croasmun, left, speech therapist at the center, and Edla Becker, president of the Pomona Valley Mothers of Twins Club. The Mothers of Twins Club is donating $500 to the center to be used for new play equipment at the local center. The center is in great need of play equipment and toys. Mrs. Becker is looking at play equipment catalogue. The Mothers of Twins Club also is donating an equal amount of $500 to the Sick Baby Fund at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The donations were the proceeds from the Mothers of Twins Club's annual spring fashion show. "You've Come A Long Way, Baby" was the theme of this year's show which was held at Club 66 in Cucamonga with Margo Quay of Ontario as chairman. Fashions for women and twins are featured in the annual style parade.

'Les Bal' set for Sept. 2

The date for the seventh annual "Les Bal des Enfants Cheris" (The Ball for the Cherished Children), sponsored by the Ontario-Pomona Association for Retarded Citizens (OPARC) Auxiliary, has been changed from Sept. 1, to Thursday, Sept. 2, according to Mrs. Gerald Wechsler, chairman.

The gala ball will be held at Red Hill Country Club in Cucamonga.

Invitations to the ball have been mailed. Featured at the charity event will be a social hour, dinner, dancing, auction and a "Las Vegas" casino.

Anyone interested in receiving an invitation to the ball is asked to call Mrs. David Walker, reservations chairman, at 624-7389, or the OPARC office, 626-5108.

The ball is held annually in conjunction with the running of the California 500 race which this year will be run on Sunday, Sept. 5, at Ontario Motor Speedway. Many of the drivers attend the ball as celebrity guests.

All proceeds are donated to OPARC, which is a member agency of the West End United Way. OPARC provides direct services in the West End of San Bernardino County and the east end of Los Angeles County.

The services are designed to complement those of the public schools, to demonstrate new programs for the disabled and to encourage the inclusion of the disabled into existing public services.

OPARC is sustained by parents and friends and now provides services for the infant-at-risk and his parents, the person who is developmentally disabled and the adult who is vocationally handicapped.

The four main services are: the day school with classes for infants and adults; Diversified Industries which is for adults who are vocationally handicapped; the Parents' Association for those interested in exchange of information and participation in the duties of membership in the government of the association; and the referrals and information for individuals or groups concerned with the developmentally disabled and the vocationally handicapped.

George Underhill, OPARC board president, said the most recent project utilizing funds from one of the balls has been the remodeling of the Diversified Industries in Ontario, a facility designed as a setting which duplicates outside employment.

The program includes work evaluation, work adjustment, work training and employment in or outside Diversified Industries.

Wages are earned by each person according to his production piece-rate. The committee at Diversified Industries participates in the development of the overall program and extra curricular activities.

Recovery group meets locally

A local unit of the National Association of Recovery, Inc., continues to meet every Wednesday night from 7:30 to 9:30 in the career center room at Chaffey High School.

Recovery is for persons interested in good mental health through will training and self-help techniques. The purpose is to prevent chronicity in nervous persons and relapses in former mental patients.

The Ontario group is one of more than 1,045 Recovery groups meeting throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Ireland. There are 60 groups in the Los Angeles area.
